

Andrea Titus

Andrea moved to DC on a whim 2 ½ years ago and hasn't looked back. In her past lives she learned how to shoot squirrels in Kansas and played guitar in a Christian punk rock band - but today you're more likely to find her out dancing, attending themed parties, rocking competitive flip cup, and collecting unusual musical instruments. Since graduating from Brown University with a B.A. in religious studies, she's worked in publishing and currently makes a living blogging about bacteria at a public health non-profit. Her mid-life crisis is likely to involve a drum set and Eastern Europe. Her ideal woman enjoys tracking down adventures, laughing, and traveling to new places. An appreciation for musical gems of the 1990s a plus. If you are to tracking down adventures, laughing, and have an appreciation for the musical gems of the 1990's—you are in for a great time!
