

Samir Sheth

Considered to be the next Indiana Jones, his successful accomplishments include: Being the drunken raider of the Great wall of China, turning the Chion-In temple into a Holiday Inn in Japan, convincing the people of India that they are not Indian during his last crusade, and dismissing the Aztec Kingdom by correcting and adding a month to the Aztec calendar while in Mexico. He loves marine life so much that he saves the live lobsters swimming in the tank at a Chinese restaurant. Marine life has also fallen in love with him: the little mermaid still has a crush on him. Every time he goes for a swim, dolphins appear. He is a finance major by education, a marketer by profession, and he currently lives in the matrix while dictating digital strategies for Gillette.
